

CLIMATE CHANGE AND COP26

With COP26 taking place in Glasgow this year, there's a lot of focus on fighting climate change. At Markshall Estate we believe in doing everything we can to protect the natural world, so here are some questions to get your minds working and test your climate change knowledge.

All living things are connected, especially those living in the same ecosystems. In your own words describe how climate change's effects on plants might affect animals in the same ecosystem.

During COP26, representatives from around the world are discussing plans to limit the harmful impacts of climate change. Using what you know about causes of climate change, suggest two ideas that could help achieve this goal.

Fighting climate change is everyone's responsibility. Describe two actions you can take which will help reduce your carbon footprint and do your bit for the planet.

Protecting the planet needs us all to work together. Create a poster, a leaflet, or even a short video to tell your peers why climate change is a problem and how they can help. We'd love to see what you come up with, so share your work with us on our social media channels.
